

MORKEL GENEALOGY

PHILIP MORKEL Descendants Report

Presentation

I found a Descendants Report the most useful to represent family genealogy. The familiar way of presenting family trees with names (in boxes or stand alone) connected by lines in a cascading fashion quickly becomes unmanageable and entangled when all the descendants are included. Descendants of Stamvader Philip Morkel are identified by their last two digits of the de Villiers alpha numeric system and each successive generation are indented right. I have inserted selected line spacers to aid readability.

Sources and Quality Control

The core of our genealogy came from combining the GISA¹ (Heese) and PW Morkel² (Franklin Boonzaier) Genealogies. They in turn were based on C.C. De Villiers³ 1894, as such, or reworked by Cor Pama. De Villiers worked from primary sources and the genealogy is reasonably comprehensive until the late 1800s. Heese and Boonzaier extended this, and in some cases as far as the mid 1900s. I have taken it further, mainly using primary information provided by family members and enthusiasts. Many contacted me through the Morkel website. Thanks to the many who contributed so generously. Our genealogy is therefore somewhat opportunistic with severe gaps, particularly for recent years. This, with all its faults, is the most comprehensive genealogy of the South African Morkel family that I know of.

I have included selected Christening dates particularly for the older entries where exact birthdates were unavailable.

Our genealogy will inevitably contain errors and omissions. Even primary sources such as church registers and official records contain errors as they are entered by humans, and transcriptions exacerbate the problem. The surprise is not that they contain errors, but rather how few there are. Family who contributed know the people involved personally, and they are indeed primary sources, but are sometimes vague about dates and exact names. Gaps remain. Please help by alerting us of errors and corrections and provide new information you might have. As far as I could, I sought to ensure validity and integrity of our information. Together with colleagues, we have repeatedly checked for transcription errors, conflicting dates and reliability of sources. We have been able to resolve conflicting data using scans of archival documents. I have focused as much as possible on reliable sources. Genealogical websites are of variable quality and we treated them with care.

Privacy Issues

Our genealogy lists names and dates of births, marriages and deaths. Is this an invasion of privacy, providing an opportunity for identity theft? This is a serious issue and needs care. Sadly privacy is an illusion with data collected electronically in so many ways, and even volunteered on social media. But this is not new. Genealogical data have always been in the public domain. Births, deaths and marriages are freely available from church and official records, are published in newspapers and are well known among family, friends and the community. There are much easier ways to steal identity than trawling laboriously through our genealogy.

Deviation from Norm

I have included children (and sometimes grandchildren) of Morkel daughters. Children with a Morkel mother carry the surname of the father, and therefore form part of their father's family trees, not the Morkel genealogy. However, many identify with the families of both parents (grandparents certainly do not exclude them from their family) and I decided to include them, even if this deviates from proper genealogical practice. I have taken it even further by continuing the alpha-numerical numbering system of the Morkel genealogy. Please note that when they are included in their father's tree, they will have different numbers.

Thanks to the many members of our family who contributed to the Genealogy. A special thanks to Gerritt Morkel, for generously contributing to the genealogy and particularly for meticulous proof reading, correcting errors and for good suggestions.
